My Example

1) A culture characteristic present in Australia is government, which is a Constitutional Monarchy. It consists of a Parliament, a form of representative democracy, with a Prime Minister at the head.

2) A culture trait present in Australia is sport. AFL (Australian Football League) is a well-known sport played around Australia.

3) A culture characteristic present in the USA is government. The government is a Democratic Republic which consists of the executive branch, the legislative branch, and judiciary branch with a President at the head. Source: Usa.gov

4) A culture trait present in the USA is sport. NFL (National Football League) is a sport which is played across the USA. Source: Nfl.com

5) Australia and the USA have different forms of government and different favorite sports. Constitutional Monarchy for Australia and Democratic Republic for the USA. AFL for Australia and NFL for the USA.

6) As an Australian living in America, I am now experiencing both of those cultures. My food and day-to-day life are more from the USA, but my slang (language) is still very Australian.

7) I think it is important we learn about other cultures because it can help us understand other people who are not like us. Although we have differences, it is good to know these things so we can get along with others.
